THE ISLANDS DIE IN HUNGARY REVOLUTION

RUSSIA WORKING FOR PEACE, SPEAKER

Reign Of Terror Imposed By Soviets To Restore Order

Wants Peace Official Tells Rotary Club

"We do not want war" Counsellor S. R. Striganov told the Murray Rotary Club yesterday. "We have all we want."

Counsellor Striganov was one of three members of the Russian Embassy in Washington, who addressed the club yesterday.

Others who addressed the club were First Secretary of the Embassy Alexandre Oustinov and Second Secretary of the Embassy V. Lobachev.

Mr. Striganov was the principal speaker for the meeting and used as his topic the foreign policy of the Soviet Union.

He said that Russia believes in the principle of peaceful co-existence. "Simultaneous existence is possible" between capitalism and communism, Striganov told the audience of Rotarians and their guests.

There is no need for conflict, he continued, because there can be peaceful competition.

"We do not want war, we have all we want," he said. He expressed the opinion that although capitalism or the free enterprise system and socialism are different, the countries of America and Russia can live together.

Socialism will win out in the end, he intimated, "because of its greater advantages."

There can be peace in the world, he continued, if four steps are followed. Mr. Striganov listed these as follows: end the arms race, reduce the armed forces, international control in disarmament, and forbid the A & H weapons.

"Russia believes in the peaceful use of atomic power," he continued. He said that Russia had proposed an agreement that all testing cease and that all weapons be destroyed, but this proposal was not accepted.

Russia will continue to press for disarmament agreements, he said. We showed our intent by

Murray State To Tangle With Arkansas As Underdog

Once again Murray State's football Thoroughbreds will take the gridiron as the underdog, and once more they hope to confound the experts, when they tangle with the strong Arkansas State Indians here Saturday night.

Three other eleven were gifted with the "collar the Breds" fever, from the sports gazers, but those hopeful combines of

TOBACCO CURING NEWS

By UNITED PRESS
Tobacco farmers in the southwest and south central sections of Kentucky were advised to keep barn ventilators closed today and open them tonight if they are ready to begin stripping.

Rain Thursday night should have helped to bring leaf into case for stripping in the southwest, the University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service reported.

Curing weather should be good today and Saturday in the southwest and south central sections but only fair to poor in the southeast.

Relative average humidity today will be 35 to 40 per cent in the southwest, 50 per cent in the south central portion and 40 to 50 per cent in the southeast, rising to 90 to 95 per cent tonight.

Southeastern farmers were advised to open their barns several hours today if their tobacco still is not as dry as it should be.

SWEATER UNRAVELS

LOS ANGELES — A pretty blonde learned the bare facts when a gallant stranger handed her his coat on a streetcar. The girl had caught her light sweater on a coin box when she paid her fare and nearly half of the garment had unraveled by the time she reached the rear of the car.

Evansville, Eastern and Tennessee Tech, all met the same fate — initial loss to the inspired Racers. And only dame fortune prevented Louisville from contributing to the destruction of the writers' polls.

The charges of Coach Jim Cullivan know that the visiting Indians are also to be respected as have previous foes. For that reason they realize that it will take another masterful performance, like the win over Tech, to bag their second win in as many games, over the Southerners.

Arkansas State will attempt to rebound from its first defeat last week at the hands of Mississippi State. They have won three, including a 39-13 rout of Florence State. Murray was named out 19-18 by Florence.

Murray will enter the game in fair-physical strength, except for injuries to fullback Phil Foster and reserve end Bud West. The latter will not dress for the game. John Daniels, a lineman may be limited due to an ankle injury.

The Breds are concentrating on their passing attack, aware that the Indian defense stopped the Mississippi State aerial offense cold.

Tommy Spiers, Arkansas State's NAIA All-American quarterback, hit five of 15 for 50 yards against the Maroons of the Southeastern Conference, and looms as a threat to the Breds. The Indian line averages well over 200 lbs. A factor in their success has been available reserve strength from their 85 man squad.

Murray dropped the Indians 13-7 last year at Johnson in their first match. Coach Gene Harlow and his boys will seek revenge when the kickoff gets underway at 8:00 p.m.

VIENNA, Oct. 26 — Hungarian workers struck today throughout the nation to back the growing strength of rebel forces who seized large areas of eastern and southern Hungary and set up a "revolutionary government."

Reports reaching the outside world told of a "reign of terror" imposed by the Soviets in their desperate efforts to restore order. Civilians and Hunarian soldiers were reported hanged in Budapest streets, crowds were reported mowed down by Russian machine-guns.

The dead was reported in the "thousands" in the fourth day of the revolution that has shaken the Communist dynasty and brought rumblings in other Communist satellites — East Germany and Albania.

Reports of a general strike, called to paralyze communication and industry in Hungary, came from Austria railway workers who visited Hegyesalom, the first rail check point inside Hungary.

They said the first workers to lay down their tools were Hungarian railway workers and that employees of all factories and plants had joined them. By 10 a.m., they said, work had ceased throughout Hungary.

There were these other developments in the crisis:

In Berlin a Swiss traveler said the Soviet army was moving into Hungary.

There were these other developments in the crisis:

Soviet guns and tanks cordoned off Budapest, but the revolt spread beyond the capital city to the industrial provinces where rebels were reported in control of rich coal-mining and uranium ore areas.

Radio Budapest opened its morning broadcast by urging everyone to keep off the streets because "the remnants of the rebels will be liquidated today" — the same promise it made Thursday.

Eisenhour, Nixon, Democrats
RIDGECREST, Calif. — Eisenhower and Nixon are campaigning for Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver. Service station operator James M. Eisenhower and Jack Nixon are members of the Desert Empire Democratic Club.

The rebel Miskolc Radro demanded the "immediate elimination of Stalinists," complete with public trials, and inclusion of "non-Communists" in the government.

Rudolf Foeldvari, Communist Party secretary of the province of Dorsood, declared in a radio speech early today that Nagy "has accepted our demands—he will form a new government tonight or tomorrow night."

But the rebels also were very strong in the south.

Secret Police Commander
Radio Pecs, which is still government-held, admitted that a "revolutionary council of the province of Baranya" was directing an organized campaign against loyalist army troops. Significantly the troops loyal to Nagy were under command of a secret police officer and not an army officer.

Radio Pecs said, loyal army troops were fighting the rebel forces in the south, but it said the loyalist troop commander was Col. Gyorgy Bradas of the secret police—a revelation of the seriousness of the mutiny within the Hungarian Army.

Coach Must Look On Bright Side

By J. ROBERTSHUBERT
United Press Sports Writer
UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — He's been the dean of pessimists for years on the picture-sque campus but this season he has been under "doctor's orders" to look on the brighter side.

He has a football team that is making that task relatively easy.

He's the United Press Coach of the Week, Charles (Rip) Engle, a kindly white-haired guy whose Penn State Nittany Lions subdued Ohio State's Scarlet Scourge 7-0 in the upset of the year to date.

There were many things that helped, but Engle said it simply showed that "we wanted to win this one more than Ohio State did."

In 27 years of coaching I never had a team that showed more desire and courage," he said. "I've had better squads physically, but this one has the most heart."

NO, THE BIG ONE!

JIMMY RAFFEY seems to be giving his father Gus an argument over which pumpkin he can have — that peewee or the big 27-pounder at his feet. The pumpkins are in the Halloween time "collection" of A. R. Sperry in Westlake, O., Cleveland suburb. Sperry got a Farm Bureau prize for the biggest pumpkin, tallest corn in town. (International)

In the morning a breakfast will be held from 7:30 to 9:00.

Tommy Morris Top In The Backfield

NEW YORK — Tommy Morris of Princeton, a rangy triple-threat out of Columbus, Ohio, was named today as top man in the United Press backfield-of-the-week for one of those dazzling performances most college football stars only dream about.

In the best tradition of his immediate predecessors, Dick Kazmaier and Royce Flippin, Morris had a hand in every point as Princeton three times roared from behind to top Colgate last Saturday, 28-20. He scored three times, passed to one touchdown, held the ball on all conversions, made a game-saving pass interception and set up the final score with a nifty punt that dropped near Colgate's goal.

For that, Morris was first choice among this week's big four in college football followed by Gene Newton of Tulane, Don Watson of Texas A & M and Bobby Cox of Minnesota.

Fight Results

Other Important Battles Are Scheduled For This Week Also

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

The Oklahoma - Notre Dame game at South Bend, Ind., Saturday is listed as the "big game" on college football's week end program, but there are several other battles which will have a direct bearing on conference championships and bowl berths.

Clemson got an early start on Saturday's heroes Thursday by edging South Carolina, 7-0, in their annual "Big Thursday" game at Columbia, S.C. The Tigers' victory enabled them to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference and moved them a step nearer to a New Year's Day engagement in the Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma A&M and Kansas meet today in a game originally scheduled for Saturday, while George Washington hopes to take over undisputed first place in the Southern Conference tonight against William & Mary.

Iowa Vs Purdue
In two of Saturday's most important conference games, Iowa, the Big Ten Conference co-leader, plays Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., while Georgia Tech will risk its Southeastern Conference leadership against upstart Tulane at Atlanta, Ga.

Although Iowa is one of the 10 major perfect record teams remaining, the Hawkeyes are five-point underdogs against Purdue. Georgia Tech is a 13-point favorite over Tulane but will have to be on its toes against the Greenies, who have knocked off Navy and Mississippi in their last two games.

Another wing-ding battle is expected at Waco, Tex., where ninth-ranked Texas A&M in an important Southwest Conference clash. Baylor is unbeaten in four games, but the Aggies are the favorites off their upset victory over Texas Christian last week.

If Stanford can get by Southern California in their Pacific Coast Conference "pick 'em" game the Indians will be on the road to the Rose Bowl. But Chuck Taylor's young men will have to stop the Trojans' Jon Arnett, who will be playing his final college game.

In the other major conferences, Princeton can tie Yale for the Ivy League lead by beating Cornell, Colorado hopes to remain unbeaten in the Big Seven against Nebraska, and Montana State risks its perfect Rocky Mountain record against Colorado Western.

Irish Hopes Slim

There doesn't seem to be much hope for Notre Dame in its tussle with Oklahoma, which will be nationally televised. The Sooners dropped out of first place in the United Press ratings this week following Michigan State's 47-14 victory over Notre Dame, so they probably will attempt to out-do the Spartans against the Irish.

Top-ranked Michigan State, however, isn't expected to surrender its spot that easy, and will show little mercy against Illinois. Fourth-ranked Tennessee should romp over Maryland, fifth-ranked Michigan meets Minnesota in their annual "Little Brown Jug" game, eighth-ranked Ohio State hopes to bounce back from its loss to Penn State against Wisconsin, and Texas Christian, tied with Baylor for ninth place, entertains Miami.

Other major games include

Whooping Cranes Complete Flight

WASHINGTON — Six whooping cranes have safely completed the flight from their Canadian breeding grounds to the Arkansas wildlife refuge in Texas, the Fish and Wildlife Service reported today.

More are expected to arrive before the middle of November. A count will be made then to determine how the 25 surviving cranes that headed north last April fared on their 5,000-mile trip. The count also will show whether any young birds were produced.

Conservationists are trying hard to save the cranes from extinction. They numbered only 15 in 1941 but are making a comeback. In addition to the 24 that flew north last spring, three are in zoos in this country.

The Blonde Died Dancing

CHAPTER 22

LEONE wasn't at the reception desk and I couldn't wait for her. I had a dance lesson to give and I didn't want to run the risk of having my pupil complain about my inattention to him. I hurried through the reception room and down the corridor to Studio K.

I opened the door, stepped inside... and it was all I could do to keep from turning around and heading for the hills. The pupil waiting for his lesson was Wendell Kipp.

He was as surprised as I. But while my surprise turned into a stampede of confusion, his blossomed into a kind of insidious joy. His smile was a drool, his velvet eyes dripped delight.

"Well," he said. "Well, well and well."

"Well, yes!" I said. "Imagine! What a small world! No, it can't be that small... you can't be the man I met at the Feather Club last night."

"No, but yes..."

"No, as a matter of fact, I wasn't in the Feather Club last night." I shut up. I realized that my pulse was still down, still out. Kipp was walking toward me. He put his insistent hands on my shoulders. I tried to step away, but he held me.

"Baby, what goes? Last night your name was Gloria. Today... here it's Hester Frost, I'm told. What goes?"

"Last night you just happen to be in a bar where the waiter turns up. When I recognized him, you just happened to disappear. This morning you just happen to have Anita's job. What gives?"

"For that matter," I said, "what gives with you? Last night you said you took your lessons on Wednesday... just before the waiter. What are you doing here now?"

"I take three lessons a week, baby," he said. "This is one of my regular times."

"Oh," I said. "Listen, Mr. Kipp..."

"Last night you called me Wendell. Last night you were really friendly. How come you picked me up?"

"You had a reason for it, didn't you?"

"Listen..."

"No, on that thought, don't tell me now, I think it would be more pleasant if you explained it to me over cocktails this evening."

"Sorry, I'm busy."

"Not that busy... because I might tip off Mr. Bell about you. Or I might get very conscientious and go to the police."

"You wouldn't do that, you?"

"Oh! So it matters. So we will have cocktails tonight. At five? At the Wellington? That's on Washington Square."

"No, I can't..."

"At five at the Wellington. We'll have fun. Maybe if we have enough fun I won't even make you explain. Now... teach me to dance, baby."

"Don't be silly. And it must be a big disappointment to you... finding me here, instead of some baby you could line up for yourself with this money I earn-to-dance business."

"Oh, not at all! Don't be modest. I really like you, baby."

"Oh, for..."

But I didn't complete my derogatory sentence. A face was pressed up against the square of glass in my studio door. Detective Hankins was looking over the scene of the crime and I was standing in full sight of him. I instantly became a dancing teacher.

I stepped in Wendell Kipp's arms and fox-trotted him around until he was between me and the door.

The door didn't open; the face at the window moved away.

"You're shaking," Kipp said. "You're all unstrung."

"That's typical of me," I said. "Look," he said, "we'll skip this lesson. Why don't you take the day off? Rest up for our date tonight, get some beauty sleep. Not that you need it."

I walked out on the great lover. I did to the ladies' locker room where I would be safe from all males, including members of the Homicide Bureau. I wanted to think things over. I went to a settee and tried to relax and be logical over a cigarette.

Steve and I did seem to be getting someplace. A little more time and we just might prove that Steve hadn't killed Anita Farrell by proving who did. But we needed time. Kipp mustn't deprive us of that with his threat. Somehow, he had to be put off.

But there was most of a day before that crisis arrived, and I mustn't waste that day. There was Leone for me to see, and Jack Walston and...

"Hello," I said. "How are you?"

"How would you be?"

"What?"

"Never go out with a fellow from Altoona, Pa., who is in the trucking business. Brother! I really had to punch him in the stomach. Myer try that? It's good. But you have to be careful not to hit him in the belt buckle. That can hurt you more than it hurts him. Well, now, let's see..."

She spilled a batch of money, mostly silver, on her lap.

"I've got to count this money," she said.

"Want some help?"

"No, I'm no good at counting sheep and things like that, but I can count money. This is a collection I took up for Jack and Dottie. Jack Walston and Dottie Harris. They're teachers here."

"What's happening about Jack and Dottie?"

"Tomorrow's their last day. They're getting married. We're going to have a little party tomorrow night. You know, cake and champagne."

"Oh, Well, I'd like to contribute."

"I wasn't going to ask you, Hester, on account of you're new here, but if you insist... seventy-five cents."

I gave her three quarters.

"Thanks, Hester. Say, what is it about trucks? When I was a kid I was that way about a boy and he got into truck driving. Brother! I had to break it off. I didn't want to grow up black and blue. There's something about trucks."

"I guess so. Why are Jack and Dottie quitting? Does Jack have another job?"

"Not what you'd call a job. He's going to open a kind of country night club up in Connecticut somewhere. You know, they'll have dining and dancing and a bar and a floor show. Jack and Dottie will do their act. They got a suite out."

"Has Dottie always been Jack's partner?"

"Oh, sure."

"I thought I heard something about Anita Farrell being Jack's partner for a while."

"You must've heard wrong."

"How long has Jack been teaching here?"

"About a year."

"And he never left to take a dancing engagement anywhere?"

"Uh-huh. Where'd you get that information?"

"From an unreliable source, I guess."

"You can say that again. Jack's just been teaching here steady all the time. Say, speaking of Anita, it wouldn't surprise me if the waiter is a truck driver."

"Why does everybody think Anita's murder was a sex crime?"

"Are you kidding? Where've you been all your life? Nine times out of ten it's sex."

"Nine times out of ten everything is sex! My God, Hester, haven't you noticed? Now, I've got to count this money."

"I won't keep you any longer. And listen, Hester, before you date another fellow you ask to see his driver's license."

"You're not kidding! Brother!"

"I went out to the reception room. Leone was tied up with some people. I scouted around, peering through the small windows of the individual studios. Dottie's was empty; apparently she didn't check in on Fridays until later in the day. I found Jack Walston instructing a group of a dozen women in the basic steps of the rumba. He didn't seem to be enjoying his work. When I got back to the reception room, Leone was alone at her desk. I went to her."

Leone is on the spot tomorrow as Chapter 23 of "The Blonde Died Dancing" continues in this newspaper.

A-Electricity Will Not Hurt Coal Exports

By MAUREEN GOTHLIN

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Britain's history-making start on a chain of atomic electricity plants doesn't cast any shadows on the outlook for rising U.S. coal exports, according to industry, union and government officials.

They foresee that the demand for coal to produce power, heat and steel in England, Western Europe, and other areas of the world will rise much faster than England's output of atomic current.

The world's first large-scale atomic power station started feeding electricity into a community in northwest England last week. The plant is one of a network of coal-carrying vessels.

By 1975 Britain expects to get one-fourth of its power needs from atomic energy. One of the main reasons for the project is the fact that England has reached the point where it can't raise its coal production much more.

Power Needs Double
But in the meantime, government experts estimate here, Britain's power needs will double at least. Some industry and union officials estimate they will increase more than that. They confidently predict that, to meet these needs, England will have to import an increasing amount of U.S. coal, even allowing for

son. AND the following voted "nay": None.

It is therefore ordered by the Hon. George Hart, Mayor, that said ordinance be published in the Ledger and Times, a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Murray, Calloway County, Kentucky, on one occasion and that said ordinance be over until the next regular meeting of said council at which time it shall be brought up for final passage in accordance with Chapter 85 of Kentucky Revised Statutes.

This the 19th day of October, 1956.

increasing oil imports as a source of energy.

U. S. coal exports to about 50 countries, excluding Canada, last year totaled 34 million tons. It is estimated coal exports will rise to 45 to 50 million tons this year. Biggest buyers are West Germany, particularly for metallurgical coal to make steel, Italy, the Netherlands, United Kingdom, Belgium and France, in that order.

Perhaps the most concrete example of confidence in rising exports is the recently formed American Coal Shipping, Inc., a $50 million corporation established this year by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, seven coal producers, Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., and three coal-carrying railroads.

Charters Liberty Ships
The firm recently won the right to charter 30 Liberty ships from the government-owned "mothball" fleet to engage in coal export shipping. The company also plans to build its own fleet of coal-carrying vessels.

Lewis and other officials of the corporation have predicted that coal exports will rise 10 per cent a year and reach 100 million tons a year by 1965.

Other industry officials think this figure is high but have no doubts that exports will continue to rise.

Government experts here say European coal production can't be increased much more unless some new method of mining is developed because of the tremendous depths to which the deposits have been mined and the difficulty in recruiting miners.

The remainder of the program consisted of an instrumental solo by Mafy Truitt, the history of the class read by Mable Dillard and a melody by Thelma Tinsley.

In the morning a breakfast will be held from 7:30 to 9:00.

Tommy Morris Top In The Backfield

NEW YORK — Tommy Morris of Princeton, a rangy triple-threat out of Columbus, Ohio, was named today as top man in the United Press backfield-of-the-week for one of those dazzling performances most college football stars only dream about.

In the best tradition of his immediate predecessors, Dick Kazmaier and Royce Flippin, Morris had a hand in every point as Princeton three times roared from behind to top Colgate last Saturday, 28-20. He scored three times, passed to one touchdown, held the ball on all conversions, made a game-saving pass interception and set up the final score with a nifty punt that dropped near Colgate's goal.

For that, Morris was first choice among this week's big four in college football followed by Gene Newton of Tulane, Don Watson of Texas A & M and Bobby Cox of Minnesota.

Other Important Battles Are Scheduled For This Week Also

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

The Oklahoma - Notre Dame game at South Bend, Ind., Saturday is listed as the "big game" on college football's week end program, but there are several other battles which will have a direct bearing on conference championships and bowl berths.

Clemson got an early start on Saturday's heroes Thursday by edging South Carolina, 7-0, in their annual "Big Thursday" game at Columbia, S.C. The Tigers' victory enabled them to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference and moved them a step nearer to a New Year's Day engagement in the Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma A&M and Kansas meet today in a game originally scheduled for Saturday, while George Washington hopes to take over undisputed first place in the Southern Conference tonight against William & Mary.

Iowa vs Purdue
In two of Saturday's most important conference games, Iowa, the Big Ten Conference co-leader, plays Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., while Georgia Tech will risk its Southeastern Conference leadership against upstart Tulane at Atlanta, Ga.

Although Iowa is one of the 10 major perfect record teams remaining, the Hawkeyes are five-point underdogs against Purdue. Georgia Tech is a 13-point favorite over Tulane but will have to be on its toes against the Greenies, who have knocked off Navy and Mississippi in their last two games.

Another wing-ding battle is expected at Waco, Tex., where ninth-ranked Texas A&M in an important Southwest Conference clash. Baylor is unbeaten in four games, but the Aggies are the favorites off their upset victory over Texas Christian last week.

If Stanford can get by Southern California in their Pacific Coast Conference "pick 'em" game the Indians will be on the road to the Rose Bowl. But Chuck Taylor's young men will have to stop the Trojans' Jon Arnett, who will be playing his final college game.

In the other major conferences, Princeton can tie Yale for the Ivy League lead by beating Cornell, Colorado hopes to remain unbeaten in the Big Seven against Nebraska, and Montana State risks its perfect Rocky Mountain record against Colorado Western.

There doesn't seem to be much hope for Notre Dame in its tussle with Oklahoma, which will be nationally televised. The Sooners dropped out of first place in the United Press ratings this week following Michigan State's 47-14 victory over Notre Dame, so they probably will attempt to outdo the Spartans against the Irish.

Top-ranked Michigan State, however, isn't expected to surrender its spot that easy, and will show little mercy against Illinois. Fourth-ranked Tennessee should romp over Maryland, fifth-ranked Michigan meets Minnesota in their annual "Little Brown Jug" game, eighth-ranked Ohio State hopes to bounce back from its loss to Penn State against Wisconsin, and Texas Christian, tied with Baylor for ninth place, entertains Miami.

Other major games include

Whooping Cranes Complete Flight

WASHINGTON — Six whooping cranes have safely completed the flight from their Canadian breeding grounds to the Arkansas wildlife refuge in Texas, the Fish and Wildlife Service reported today.

More are expected to arrive before the middle of November. A count will be made then to determine how the 25 surviving cranes that headed north last April fared on their 5,000-mile trip. The count also will show whether any young birds were produced.

Conservationists are trying hard to save the cranes from extinction. They numbered only 15 in 1941 but are making a comeback. In addition to the 24 that flew north last spring, three are in zoos in this country.

Coach Must Look On Bright Side

By J. ROBERTSHUBERT
United Press Sports Writer

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — He's been the dean of pessimists for years on the picture-sque campus but this season he has been under "doctor's orders" to look on the brighter side.

He has a football team that is making that task relatively easy.

He's the United Press Coach of the Week, Charles (Rip) Engle, a kindly white-haired guy whose Penn State Nittany Lions subdued Ohio State's Scarlet Scourge, 7-6, Saturday in the upset of the year to date.

There were many things that helped, but Engle said it simply showed that "we wanted to win this one more than Ohio State did."

"In 27 years of coaching I never had a team that showed more fight than this one," he said. "They were able to beat a team that had beaten us for years."

As for the future, Engle said he was "not a pessimist."

"We worked hard on this one and everybody pitched in to get ready for what we knew would be a tough game," he said. "I've had better squads physically, but this one has the most heart, desire and courage."

But right now he's worried lest the team should suffer a letdown against West Virginia Saturday.

"I don't mind striking a blow for eastern football now and then, but we have traditional rivalries, too, and we really like to win these neighborhood battles," he said. "The team enjoyed the Ohio State victory, but it would get even more out of beating West Virginia, Syracuse, and later on Pittsburgh."

One strong psychological weapon which Engle had in his arsenal against Ohio State was a newspaper clipping "somebody dug up." The clipping quoted Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes that the Buckeyes were looking beyond the Penn State game and were practicing plays to be used against Wisconsin, a Big Ten opponent this Saturday.

To the Nittany lion squad of 43 that was the supreme insult. Yet Engle denied emphatically that he pointed for Ohio State.

The Blonde Died Dancing

CHAPTER 22

LEONE wasn't at the reception desk and I couldn't wait for her. I had a dance lesson to give and I didn't want to run the risk of having my pupil complain about my inattention to him. I hurried through the reception room and down the corridor to Studio K.

I opened the door, stepped inside... and it was all I could do to keep from turning around and heading for the hills. The pupil waiting for his lesson was Wendell Kipp.

He was as surprised as I. But while my surprise turned into a stampee of confusion, his blossomed into a kind of insidious joy. His smile was a drool, his velvet eyes dripped delight.

"Well," he said, "well, well, well."

"Well, yes!" I said. "Imagine! What a small world! No, it can't be that small... you can't be the man I met at the Feather Club last night..."

"No, as a matter of fact, I wasn't in the Feather Club last night," I shut up. I realized that my pulse was still down, still out. Kipp was walking toward me. He put his insistent hands on my shoulders. I tried to step away, but he held me.

"Baby, what goes? Last night your name was Gloria. Today... here it's Hester Frost, I'm told. What goes?"

"Gloria?"

"Last night you just happen to be in a bar where the Waltzes turn up. When I recognized him, you just happened to disappear. This morning you just happen to have Anita's job. What gives?"

"For that matter," I said, "what gives with you? Last night you said you took your lessons on Wednesday... just before the Waltzes. What are you doing here now?"

"I take three lessons a week, baby," he said. "This is one of my regular times."

"Oh, I said, 'Listen, Mr. Kipp...'

"Last night you called me Wendell. Last night you were real friendly. How come you picked me up?"

"I picked you up?"

"You had a reason for it, didn't you?"

"Listen..."

"No, on second thought, don't tell me now. I think it would be more pleasant if you explained it to me over cocktails this evening."

"Sorry, I'm busy."

"Not that busy... because I might get very conscientious and go to the police."

"You wouldn't do that, you?"

"Oh! So it matters. So we will have cocktails tonight. At five? At the Wellington? That's on Washington Square."

"No, I can't..."

"At five at the Wellington. We'll have fun. Maybe if we have enough fun I won't even make you explain. Now... teach me to dance, baby."

"Don't be silly. And it must be a big disappointment to you... finding me here, instead of some baby you could line up for yourself with this phoney 1956-to-dance business."

"Oh, not at all! Don't be modest. I really like you, baby."

"Oh, for..."

But I didn't complete my derogatory sentence. A face was pressed up against the square of glass in my studio door. Detective Hankins was looking over the scene of the crime and I was standing in full sight of him. I instantly became a dancing teacher. I stepped in Wendell Kipp's arms and fox-trotted him around until he was between me and the door.

The door didn't move away. The face at the window moved away.

"You're shaking," Kipp said. "You're all unstrung."

"That's typical of me," I said. "Look," he said, "we'll skip this lesson. Why don't you take the day off? Rest up for our date tonight, get some beauty sleep. Not that you need it."

I walked out on the great lover. I fled to the ladies' locker room where I would be safe from all males, including members of the Homicide Bureau. I wanted to think things over. I went to a settee and tried to relax and be logical over a cigarette.

Steve and I did seem to be getting somewhere. A little more time and we just might prove that Steve hadn't killed Anita Farrell by proving who did. But we needed time. Kipp mustn't deprive us of that with his threat. Somehow, he had to be put off.

But there was most of a day before that crisis arrived, and I mustn't waste that day. There was Leone for me to see, and Jack Walton and...

"Hello!"

Hooray Rose plopped down on the settee beside me. The ex-show girl, ex-model was looking a bit exhausted this morning, but on her even exhaustion looked good.

"Hello, Hooray," I said. "How are you?"

"How would you be?"

"That?"

"Never go out with a fellow from Altoona, Pa., who is in the trucking business. Brother! I finally had to punch him in the stomach. Ever try that? It's good. But you have to be careful not to hit him in the belt buckle. That can hurt you more than it hurts him. Well, now, let's see..."

She spilled a batch of money, mostly silver, on her lap.

"I've got to count this money," she said.

"Want some help?"

"No, I'm no good at counting sheep and things like that, but I can count money. This is a collection I took up for Jack and Dottie. Jack Walton and Dottie Harris. They're teachers here."

"That's happening about Jack and Dottie?"

"Tomorrow's their last day. They're getting married. We're

A-Electricity Will Not Hurt Coal Exports

By MAUREEN GOTHLIN

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Britain's history-making start on a chain of atomic electricity plants doesn't cast any shadows on the outlook for rising U.S. coal exports, according to industry, union and government officials.

They force that the demand for coal to produce power, heat and steel in England, Western Europe, and other areas of the world will rise much faster than England's output of atomic current.

The world's first large-scale atomic power station started feeding electricity into a community in northwest England last week. The plant is one of a network of dozen or so to be built across the United Kingdom in the next 10 years.

By 1975 Britain expects to get one-fourth of its power needs from atomic energy. One of the main reasons for the project is the fact that England has reached the point where it can't raise its coal production much more.

Power Needs Double
But in the meantime, government experts estimate here, Britain's power needs will double at least. Some industry and union officials estimate they will increase more than that. They confidently predict that, to meet these needs, England will have to import an increasing amount of U.S. coal, even allowing for

son. AND the following voted "nay": None.

It is therefore ordered by the Hon. George Hart, Mayor, that said ordinance be published in the Ledger and Times, a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Murray, Calloway County, Kentucky, on one occasion and that said ordinance lie over until the next regular meeting of said council at which time it shall be brought up for final passage in accordance with Chapter 85 of Kentucky Revised Statutes.

increasing oil imports as a source of energy.

U. S. coal exports to about 50 countries, excluding Canada, last year totaled 34 million tons. It is estimated coal exports will rise to 45 to 50 million tons this year. Biggest buyers are West Germany, particularly for metallurgical coal to make steel, Italy, the Netherlands, United Kingdom, Belgium and France, in that order.

Perhaps the most concrete example of confidence in rising exports is the recently formed American Coal Shipping, Inc., a $50 million corporation established this year by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, seven coal producers, Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., and three coal-carrying railroads.

Charters Liberty Ships
The firm recently won the right to charter 30 Liberty ships from the government - owned "mothball" fleet to engage in coal export shipping. The company also plans to build its own fleet of coal-carrying vessels.

Lewis and other officials of the corporation have predicted that coal exports will rise 10 per cent a year and reach 100 million tons a year by 1965.

Other industry officials think this figure is high but have no doubts that exports will continue to rise.

Government experts here say European coal production can't be increased much more unless some new method of mining is developed because of the tremendous depths to which the deposits have been mined and the difficulty in recruiting miners.

Russia ...

reducing our armed forces by over one million, he told the Rotarians. We also tried to get the nations to stop testing atomic bombs, he continued. An easy check can be kept, he said, because science can tell when an atomic explosion takes place anywhere in the world.

Russia will do everything necessary to safeguard international peace and security," Striganov told the large assemblage.

If all nations have mutual respect for one another, sign non-aggression pacts, do not interfere with each other's internal affairs, and carry on peaceful trade, then a peaceful co-existence can be made possible, he said.

Striganov concluded his talk by saying that he wished that a more correct appraisal could be made of Russian efforts. All effort today is being placed on building up Russia internally, he said. We want more schools, hospitals, and peacetime use of atomic energy.

Mr. Striganov had no comments to make concerning the activity now going on in Poland and Hungary, in response to a question. He told one questioner that Russia was against Eisenhower's air inspection plan because it would lead to an arms race. He did not elaborate on this question.

He told one questioner that more contact between the people of Russia and the United States would lead to better relationship. The first nine months of 1956 saw 3,000 American tourists in Russia and 200 Russians in America, he said.

In response to a question, he said that Stalin was de-emphasized because of the many mistakes that he had made.

Preceding the talk of Mr. Striganov, the club heard V. Lobachev who gave some general information concerning Russia. He spoke of the great progress made in Russia in the past forty years. He said that efforts were now being made to make life happier and more plentiful in Russia.

Mr. Lobachev was introduced by George Overbey and he in turn introduced Mr. Striganov and Mr. Oustinov. The members of the embassy were invited to speak as guests of the club, by unanimous vote of the club. Many guests were present at this interesting meeting.

Guests of Prentice Lassiter were W. Z. Carter and Preston Holland. Guest of James Lassiter was Bob Miller. Ted Lawson was a guest of E. T. Winchester. Bob Perry had as his guest Bobby Russell. E. B. Howton had as his guest Frank Stealy. Frank Lancaster was a guest of Darrell Shoemaker. Waylon Rayburn had as his guest Gingles Wallis.

Guests of A. Carmon were Bill Tillmon, Arlie Scott, and Robert Hendon. C. O. Bondurant had as guests Jim Wells, A. C. Davis, and Charles Wyatt. Tom Hogan-camp had as his guest Auburn Wells. Bill Wallace had as his guest Major Hallonon. Bill Pogue had as his guests several members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Rupert Stivers, Z. Enix, Bethel Richardson, and Ed Fenton. Dr. Hugh Oakley had as his guest Dr. C. S. Lowery.

Visiting Rotarians included Al Lindsey and R. B. Ligon of Mayfield; Fred Balch and Malcolm Little of Paris; J. D. Gamble and Jess Collier of Benton.

CHAPTER 25

LEONE seemed surprised at my approaching her at the reception desk.

"Leone," I said, "I've got to speak to you."

She didn't answer for a moment. Her guard went up. Then she said, "What do you want to speak to me about?"

"I think you know."

"I know?"

"What was that you hit me with, Leone? Honestly, sneaking up behind a girl like that! What would Mr. Bell think of such unbecoming behavior?"

"All right," she said. "But this is a busy day..."

"Why can't you arrange to have lunch with me?"

"I can't. I'm not free."

She stopped talking. She was looking beyond me and I turned to see what was so intriguing. Immediately, I turned back. Detective Lohm and Hankins were coming down a corridor toward us. They spotted across the reception room to catch an impatient elevator. I was glad to see them go. Leone didn't seem to notice them either, but I didn't discuss it with her.

"I said, 'Leone, stretch a point today and have some lunch. I'm sure if Mr. Bell knew about your unbecoming behavior...'"

"All right."

"We made a date for lunch. The hour that Leone arranged for us was late, the small restaurant on Forty-sixth of Madison was nearly empty. Leone told the waiter she wasn't hungry, that she would just have a Dubonnet cocktail. I didn't feel in the mood for food either, but I ordered milk and a sandwich. I had a hunch that I should keep my strength at its maximum.

The waiter went away.

Leone said, "Why did you get a job at the school?"

"That doesn't matter."

"Is Hester Frost your real name?"

"Leone, I'm not going to answer any of your questions. I'm not really tough, but I'm going to pretend I am. Call this any nasty word you like, but if you don't tell me the truth about what I want to know, I'm going to talk to Mr. Bell. About you, Leone."

"What makes you think he'd care?"

"Because... as of now... he's going to marry you."

Her eyes behind the stylish spectacles opened wide. Her surprise was genuine. That meant Bell had not yet told her about my conference with him. Perhaps he hadn't the opportunity, perhaps he meant not to tell her at all. At any rate, it gave me a chance to shock her some more, and I used that chance.

"I know all about it, Leone. From his proposal to you last New Year's Eve... telephone... to your plans to be married. This one, I know you don't even

Log Cabin Helps People Up To Fame

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK UP — The log cabin has a way of helping people to fame. Look at Abraham Lincoln and William Henry Harrison. Or, Jaye P. Morgan and Lynn Dollar.

Mary Lee Settle, a model turned novelist, hopes its magic also works for her.

"At least to help me to the best-seller list," said Miss Settle a sophisticated hillbilly whose recently published historical novel, "O Beulah Land," brought rave reviews from the critics.

Miss Settle, 34, goes all her writing in a setting right out of pioneer days—a log cabin built in 1830 and located in an isolated section of the hills about 12 miles from her native Charleston, W. Va.

"Lincoln was born in a log cabin in Kentucky. Miss Morgan, a singer in one in Colorado; Miss Dollar of a certain famous quiz show, in North Dakota. And Harrison won his way into the White House on a 'log cabin and hard cider' campaign slogan.

Miss Settle and I talked about reasons for her log cabin living when I recently was in our native state.

"I guess this was inevitable," said the novelist, a tall beautiful brunette who resembles the actress, Patricia Neal.

"To write, you have to have escape. . . I've found it here. Except for the darned telephone."

The two-room cabin is in a rustic setting, but he has been made as modern inside as a 1956 ranch house.

Mary Lee Settle already has two contemporary novels behind her. Her "O Beulah Land" is the first of a panel of four historical works about what once was Western Virginia.

Her latest work gets its title from an old time Methodist hymn. "I come from a long line of preachers," she said.

Joins British Waaf
The novelist was educated at Sweetbriar College and had a brief fling at modeling and acting in New York before World War II. In 1942, she joined the British Waaf, and during her 13-year stay Newton, British poet and author. After the war, she was British correspondent for a couple of U.S. magazines.

Russia And China Strong In East Asia

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Communist China and Soviet Russia are strengthening their positions in East Asia while the Western Allies worry over the Middle East.

The Reds are seeking actively to make friends and extend the "neutralist" movement.

It looks as if they are making considerable progress.

Half a dozen countries, some of them most important in the Asian defense picture, are affected.

Prime Minister Mohammed Daud of Afghanistan, the buffer nation between the Soviet Union and Pakistan, arrived in Moscow last Wednesday.

Nepal Premier in China
Prime Minister Tank Prasad Acharya of Nepal, which lies between China and India, is now in Peiping on a visit to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

President Sukarno of Indonesia, a leading neutralist, has just returned home from a long tour of Communist countries including both Russia and Red China.

Prime Minister Hussein Shaheed Suhrawardy of Pakistan.

Sweetbriar College and had a brief fling at modeling and acting in New York before World War II.

In 1942, she joined the British Waaf, and during her 13-year stay Newton, British poet and author.

After the war, she was British correspondent for a couple of U.S. magazines.

But a year ago she chucked all her assignments and went to work on her novel. She figures it will take another seven years to complete the four works.

Ironically, she did her research on early Virginia history at the British museum. "Well," she explained, "they kept pretty good notes on us in the Revolutionary days."

Miss Settle said she knew her log cabin life would lead to a lot of comment. "I don't mind being called a hill-billy or ridge runner," she laughed. "But if anyone says next thing, I'll be making moonshine, tell 'em I don't have the time."

which is a member of both the Middle Eastern and Southeast Asian alliances against Communist aggression, arrived in Peiping last Thursday on a visit to Chou.

Chou To Visit Nehru
It has been announced that Chou will visit Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and King Suramarit of the Indonesian state of Cambodia next month.

Red Chinese President Mao Tse-tung is to visit Indonesia, probably within the next few weeks.

It has even been made known that the atheistic Chinese Reds will send a delegation to Nepal to attend a big world Buddhist congress which opens there Nov. 15.

Some Oppose Reds
There are a few places where the Communists are not meeting any encouragement in their campaign of penetration.

The governments of Malaya and Singapore, newly given their independence by Great Britain, are actively fighting Communism.

Thailand, a member of the Southeast Asian alliance, is deaf to Communist lures.

In Southern Viet Nam in Indo-

China, a new American-style constitution is to be proclaimed Thursday. This state, made an independent republic when North Viet Nam went to the Communists after the Indochina War, is an anti-Communist strong point. The Reds seem to have given up any hope that they can take it by force or win it through a rigged "unifying" election.

Trouble At Home
It is true also that "neutralist" Sukarno of Indonesia is having trouble at home as the result of his long visit behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains.

Contract Tale

RANDALL CRAMER, former vice president of the Frederick Snare corporation, is shown as he appeared before the House government operations committee in Washington, where he said the firm had to prove it was a Republican supporter before it got a government contract in 1954. The contract was the $43,000,000 expansion of a nickel plant in Cuba. He said the Snare firm did two other jobs on the nickel plant under previous administrations, and "No one ever asked whether we were Republicans or Democrats. They had a job to do and picked the best people to do it."
